2023 Site Identification Study Follow-Up and Next Steps

In 2023, Wake County Economic Development (WCED) led a Site Identification Study, which identified 40 potential sites and more than 8,000 acres for potential new industrial development across Wake County. The study included multiple sites in each of the municipalities in eastern Wake County. Wake County and Wake County Economic Development will give a recap of the study, and an update on site selection trends and current economic development project activity. They will also discuss plans for an upcoming redevelopment study.
